Sunny handles a broad range of general liability and insurance defense matters, representing businesses and individuals in civil litigation with an emphasis on real estate, premises liability, and complex liability disputes. His experience includes defending commercial truck drivers and motor carriers in personal injury and transportation-related cases involving high-exposure collisions, negligence claims, and cargo matters, as well as representing a national wholesale retailer in premises liability actions involving slip-and-fall incidents, alleged hazardous conditions, and other general liability claims.

During law school, Sunny worked for a real estate investment and construction company, where he assisted with a wide array of legal matters, including contract review, compliance, and business disputes.
